

Getting Started with Line

Sketchbook Practice and Reflective Prompts:

Here are some ideas and prompts for your journaling practice over the next week or so. Feel free to play around with these ideas.

Do as much or as little as you feel like and have fun!

Play in your sketchbook with more line and continue to explore how you like to make line.

Continue to develop the paintings you began during the session if they are not finished, or do more if they are not. Experiment with different sized paper, squares and rectangles of different sizes.

If you use Pinterest you might like to begin some boards about Line. They could be other artists work. Line in the environment. Line in ceramics, textile or sculpture. As you create these boards, think about what the qualities are of the line that you find yourself interested and drawn to.

If you don't use Pinterest, you might like to collect some hard copy images of line. These can be from magazines, photos, the internet. Again it can be other artists work, ceramics, sculpture the external environment. Anything you find yourself interested in. You could print off these images stick them in your sketchbook and again journal about what you find interesting in these types of line.

Notice anything in your internal dialogue as you engage with this process that is helpful and supportive or critical .
